Maps are more than mere representations of geography—they are reflections of power, ideology, and historical memory. In Northeast Asia, a region characterized by complex relationships between Korea, China, Japan, Russia, and Mongolia, cartography has played a vital role in shaping perceptions of sovereignty, territorial claims, and cultural identities. The period from 1590 to 2010 is particularly significant for Korea, as it encompasses the waning influence of the Ming Dynasty, the rise of the Qing Dynasty, Japanese colonization, the Korean War, and the subsequent division into North and South Korea. Each era left its imprint on the cartographic record, illustrating territorial changes, administrative boundaries, and shifting geopolitical landscapes.

Historical Overview of Northeast Asia (1590–2010)

The Late 16th and Early 17th Centuries: The Joseon Dynasty and External Threats

In 1590, Korea was under the rule of the Joseon Dynasty, a period marked by internal consolidation and external threats, notably Japan's invasions (1592–1598). Cartographic records from this era often focus on military campaigns, border fortifications, and tributary relationships with China.

Key features of maps from this period include:

- Emphasis on Korea's territorial extent within the Korean Peninsula.
- Depictions of neighboring Ming China and Japan.
- Limited accuracy due to technological constraints.

The Qing Dynasty and Korea (17th–19th Centuries)

Following the Manchu conquest of China and the establishment of the Qing Dynasty, Korea maintained a tributary relationship with the Qing, while remaining diplomatically autonomous. During this period, maps become more sophisticated, reflecting increased Chinese influence and the expansion of cartographic knowledge.

Notable developments include:

- The inclusion of Manchu territories and border delineations.
- The representation of Korea as a vassal state within the Qing sphere.
- Early European maps that introduce Western cartographic techniques to the region.

Japanese Colonization and World War II (1895–1945)

Japanese annexation of Korea in 1910 dramatically changed the cartographic landscape. Maps from this era often served colonial administrative purposes, emphasizing Japanese sovereignty and territorial control.

Features of maps during Japanese rule:

- Detailed administrative boundaries within Korea.
- Emphasis on resource-rich regions.
- Incorporation of Japanese place names and imperial symbols.

Post-World War II to the Cold War Era (1945–1990)

The end of Japanese occupation and the subsequent division of Korea into North and South marked a new phase in cartography. The Cold War context fueled territorial claims and ideological narratives.

Map characteristics include:

- The demarcation of the 38th parallel.
- The creation of separate maps for North and South Korea.
- Depictions of military zones, border fortifications, and the DMZ.

Modern Era and Reunification Efforts (1990–2010)

The last two decades saw increased efforts toward peace, diplomacy, and reunification, reflected in the cartographic record by more accurate, detailed, and diplomatically neutral maps.

Recent maps highlight:

- Advances in geographic information systems (GIS).
- Cross-border cooperation initiatives.
